

[PORTABLE COMPUTER SECURITY OPERATING METHOD]

Abstract

The embodiment of the present invention provides an operating method of a portable computer security mechanism. The operating method first providing a key signal to an embedded controller (EC). Upon receiving the key signal, a security check and a security action is taken place accordingly by the EC. The security action including preventing an input from a keyboard, preventing an input from a mouse, preventing the portable computer from being turned on, preventing a BIOS data from being changed, and etc..